Synopsis

It's Warm Inside follows one night in the life of Hannah, a non-binary person, who is going to Shabbat dinner at their mother's house with their mother and their cousin, Georgie. Georgie knows that Hannah is non-binary, but their mother does not. Hannah decides that they are going to speak with their mother over dinner. As the night progresses, Hannah is unable to have that conversation with their mother, although their mother shows some degree of understanding, and speaks about the different genders that exist in the Talmud. When Hannah gets home, they see a message from their mother. They read it and smile.
